ECO FRIENDLY HOMES AT A FRACTION OF THE COST

The launch of the Zed Factory's latest housing build product took place at BRE on 14 December 2016 in Watford. These Eco friendly homes sell for a fraction of the costs of the average property in the UK and all are made to reduce the costs of energy through the use of energy saving products. The structure of the new build maximizes space as they are built above the homeowner's parking space - thus saving on more costs.

The Zedpods are designed by Architect Bill Dunster, OBE, and many influential people were at the event including Sir Richard Needham, who is ex chairman of Dyson and is currently a Conservative politician. MAGIC THERMODYNAMIC BOX have partnered with Zed Factory to provide the Big Magic Thermodynamic Box, which, with the use of its Thermodynamic panels, will provide the home with the energy needed to heat up to 250-litres of water, day and night, in any weather conditions.

RINNAI BUILDS BUSINESS WITH O'NEIL'S

RINNAI, manufacturer of the Energysaver energy efficient range of gas fired wall heaters, recently pulled out all the stops in collaboration with Ayr-based installer O'Neil Gas Services to keep the congregation warm at St Mary's Church in Saltcoats, Ayrshire. "We choose Rinnai heaters because they are reliable, and easy to work on, as well as being efficient. O'Neil's use only the best as call backs can be expensive and so installing the Rinnai heating range within commercial installations is an obvious choice," says O'Neil's installation manager Ross McWhirter. Six Rinnai 1004T units were installed at the church.
